FANTASTIC NEWS FOR THE VILLAGE – Thanks to a huge amount of work, generosity of time and ceaseless determination work on the new Village Hall is soon to begin.

*A HUGE ...Thank you to Judy D'Arcy Irvine
 and your wonderful Team
 for securing a brand new Village Hall for Enford*

The idea was first conceived by Dominic Campbell in the late 1990's but has taken another 10 years to realise.

This momentous achievement cannot pass without highlighting the tireless work of one person, Judy D'Arcy Irvine. Yes, others have helped enormously but, her dogged determination, persistence and drive, has produced this wonderful result.

It has involved:-

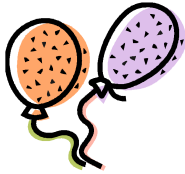

- Negotiating with the Architect regarding design, plans and cost
- Submitting the Planning Application
- Hundreds of hours spent Researching statistical info., grants, etc.
- Production of comprehensive Business Plan
- Numerous applications for grants
- Answering dozens of questions from the grant Providers
- Attending countless meetings
- Spending a fortune on petrol, postage, paper, etc. etc...!
- Lots of blood, sweat and tears.....!!!!

A truly gigantic task, we are extremely grateful to everyone who has been involved.

Thank you very much.

This is just the beginning now we have a very exciting time ahead when lots more support will be required to create the best Village hall for our local community – for everyone to enjoy !

Thank you All !

THE NEW ENFORD VILLAGE HALL LOTTERY GRANT SUCCESS!

Fantastic news - the Village Hall Committee is delighted to say that we have been awarded a Lottery Grant of £192,500 towards the New Village Hall! This grant means we have raised enough to start building the New Hall which will be completed by next Spring.

The other grants we have received are from the Football Foundation, Kennet District Council, Wiltshire County Council and Viridor Waste Management, all adding up to a grand total of £550,000 ! We will still need to raise more funds of around £20,000 to £30,000 for tables, chairs and equipment.

The Football Foundation grant is to help the Enford Football Club and the Red Lion Teams continue with their successes on the playing field. The Football Club will be helping set up children's and youth teams – so lots of opportunity to come and cheer on the sidelines!

We are starting to build the new hall at the beginning of September

Come to the Party on 22nd August to say "Farewell to the Old Village Hall" commemorating 43 years of the old hall's life – details in the Newsletter.

The New Hall is for Everyone!

What would YOU like?

Please let us know - so we can help organise new activities

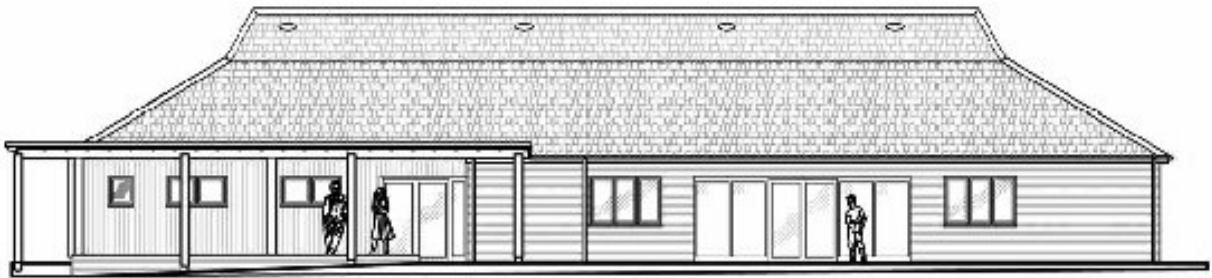

The Committee would like to include your ideas for what YOU would like to see happen in the New Hall – some ideas we have been given so far:

Whist and Bingo, Short Mat Bowls, Movie Evenings to show the latest box office hits, Playgroups, a new Youth Club, Coffee Mornings, exercise or dance classes – plus Cubs, Brownies, Cadets, arts & crafts, gardening, local history!

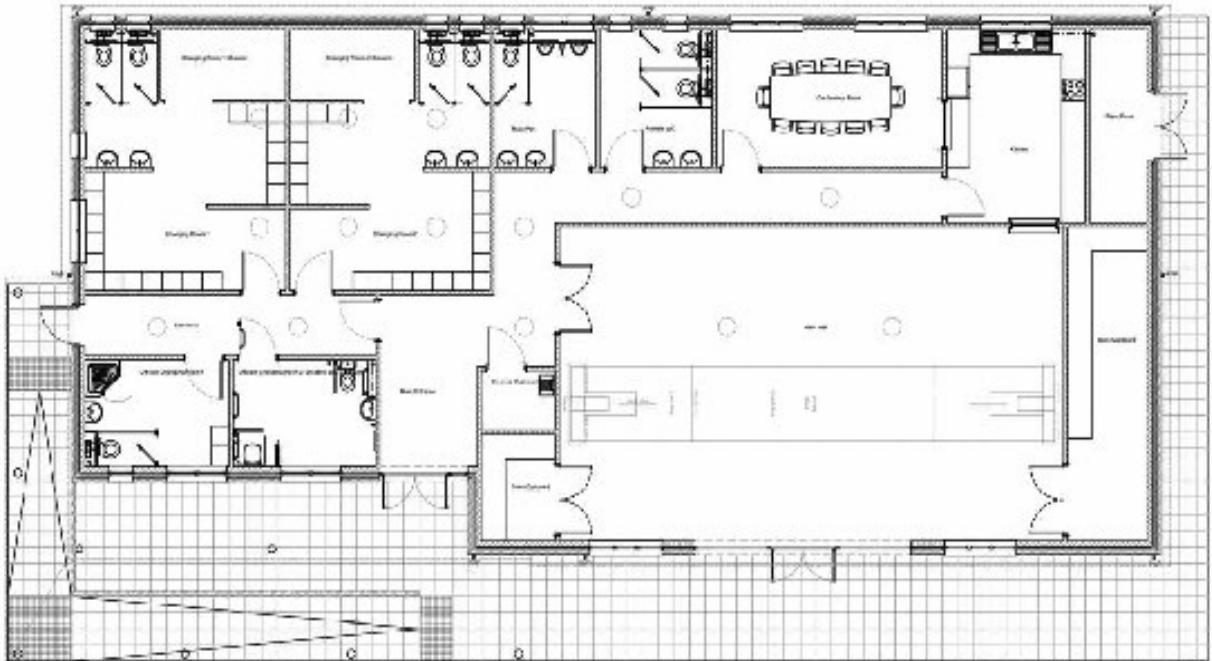

With the New Hall opening next spring, and the Enford & Chisenbury Fete starting up next year on the Recreation Ground, there will be lots going on - so come and support the 'Farewell Party', drink and dance to Bertie's music, and give us your ideas for what you would like to have in Enford's New Hall

MEXICAN EVENING ENJOYED BY ALL

A big thank you to Morton and Mary Burdick and their army of volunteers who made The Mexican Evening at Enford Church on Saturday 10th May a resounding success. It was a great evening and most enjoyable and as I understand it a lot of funds were raised for Enford Church and this was without the sponsorship of the New Vicar taking a hairy jump out of an aircraft over Netheravon. Thanks to all the team involved for a really enjoyable event.

LITTER PICKING AT NEW BUILDINGS

New Buildings carried out a Litter Pick Up Day on Sunday 15th June. We litter picked New Buildings and part of the A345 also Enford Church Yard, Enford Hill and the Memorial Gardens and bus stops. I must say that with the exception of around the bus stops the area was almost clear of rubbish. A big thank you to volunteers Sam and Jake Slater and also to Louis who volunteered but was on Cadet Manoeuvres on the Salisbury Plains and could not join us, thanks Louis for your support.

ENFORD CHURCH TEAS AT CHISENBURY PRIORY 8TH JUNE 2008

Thank you to all those ladies who so generously contributed to the teas at Chisenbury Priory on the 8th June with their wonderful homemade cakes and to Ann Brend for all the delicious scones. Thank you too to all those who helped on the day, serving teas, collecting the used cups & saucers and washing up. We estimated that altogether more than 275 teas were poured. The weather was perfect and the teas raised just over £545 for the church funds. The Parochial Church Council would like to thank John and Tessa Manser very much for allowing us to use this occasion for our fund raising.

CHILDREN FROM CHERNOBYL

Once again I must say a huge thank you to all who contributed to our recent group of Chernobyl children. It was a picture to see, when the children saw all the goodies donated to them from suitcases to clothes, toiletries, jewellery and money. I can tell that there wasn't much left but it was a pleasure to see it all go. One girl was taking things for her younger sister and brother and of course something for Mum and Dad.

Also many thanks to Jeni Scott Dalglish who kindly let the children have their picnic lunch in their garden and then a swim and a game of tennis. They thoroughly enjoyed it.

Well done everyone

Thanks

The Bishop of Ramsbury (Stephen Conway) writes about one of the events in the Avon Valley during Heartbeat week in June (the other event in Enford was the pub quiz in The Swan and the Heartbeat team came 2nd!):

Once a year the Mansers open their beautiful gardens at Chisenbury Priory to the public. They were very generous in allowing us to hold an open air service in the garden at the close of the event and to host all-comers for drinks afterwards. The weather was glorious, the setting idyllic and the singing angelic. Then they had to listen to me speaking. I spoke principally about how the Biblical record of our salvation is so intimately associated with gardens in which God himself was intimately present: the Garden of Eden, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Garden where the tomb was located in Jerusalem where Mary Magdalene mistook the Risen Christ for the gardener and the Garden of the New Jerusalem where all tears shall be wiped away.

The sub-text of what was a very ecumenical occasion at which many Roman Catholics were present. I alluded to my catholic roots in Ireland and there was an intrigued queue of people after the service wanting to quiz me about my particular allegiance. We had good conversations and a lot of laughter.

It was also a good event planning occasion. John and Tessa have no fewer than three donkeys - and own a donkey cart -and so we are negotiating how we might journey around the Avon Valley on Palm Sunday in a couple of years time.

CUBA

Aaaah Cuba! I'm sure some of you reading this article will have been here for a nice relaxing holiday. However, our trip there was anything but relaxing.

We arrived in Havana, hot and tired, and checked into our hotel. First thing was to change some money which I did at the hotel, the rate being more or less the same everywhere. Fortunately I checked the amount I'd been given to find that I'd been short changed by a considerable sum. I returned to the desk where the gentleman reached underneath the desk with a rather sheepish grin, and came up with my money.

Then a trip to the supermarket for water and a bottle of wine. We were met at the door by a big jolly coloured lady who opened the door for us and presented us with a basket. What a nice lady we thought. She proceeded to follow us around until we reached the checkout. When I opened my purse to pay she started to tell us this awful story about how she'd not long had a very big operation, couldn't work, had lots of children etc. etc. and of course, with a bulging purse open what could we do but give her some. She went away and we came out of the shop realising that we had once again been short changed! I went back and once again the guy felt underneath the till and produced what he'd creamed off my change.

We then decided to have an ice-cream. This time I handed over a small note and the guy vanished out of the back of the shop. I never did see my change!

So, in the space of 20 minutes or so, we'd been ripped off 4 times. We later found that this is pretty standard practice in Havana as most of the population doesn't earn enough to live on. All their food is rationed and their allowance lasts for two weeks if they're careful. The rest of the month they have to go to the supermarket and pay tourist rates.

In spite of this we had a good few days exploring the fascinating old town, spending our days in the Museum of the Revolution, touring around in a 1950's Chevy convertible, sitting in pavement cafes listening to salsa bands, browsing the markets and of course the must-see visit to a Cuban nightclub for a fantastic show of Cuban music and dancing. We got chatting to another couple who told us a far worse story of being fleeced by locals. Apparently they'd met a local couple who offered to take them to 'a friend's' club. When they got inside they were made to buy them drinks and food and then asked for money. When they refused they were warned that not to pay up could result in them 'not enjoying' the rest of their stay. Needless to say they paid up.

As we wanted to travel around Cuba and knew it would not be easy on our own we had booked a comprehensive tour for three weeks. We had seen what we wanted in Havana and left for Trinidad, some 350 kilometres away. We soon realised why it would have been difficult to travel on our own. There is no transport system in Cuba. Hundreds of people lined the roads waiting for a lift to their destination. Some waited all day. The number plates of the vehicles denote their use. Blue - transport vehicle, red - hire car, yellow - privately owned etc. As we were a group of tourists we were not allowed to pick anyone up but any vehicle with a blue number plate is obliged to stop and pick up people if it has room.

We stopped along the way for a comfort break at a café which had a mini-zoo attached. We were somewhat alarmed to see people betting on a board called "Spin the guinea pig" to win a bottle of rum! The coffee however was delicious served with a stick of sugar picked from the neighbouring sugar plantation. Our next stop was to be the famous Bay of Pigs where we spent time looking around the museum which gave an account of the invasion there back in the 50s. We carried on to some natural pools, formed when some of the caves collapsed and filled with water. What joy to get out of our bus and cool off! After a visit to Cienfuego we arrived at our hotel in Trinidad at around 7.30. As we were out of town we decided to eat in the hotel. We had been warned that the food would be basic out of the main cities and that quickly proved to be the case. Rice and black beans are served with every meal and the food is very bland in spite of seeing chillies, garlic etc being sold at the roadside. After fish followed by ice-cream and coffee we decided a mojita or two would go down well. This is a local drink made from rum.

We woke the next day to hear the news that Fidel Castro had resigned. Huge news here and everyone was buzzing with excitement and waiting to hear who would be talking over the reins. We went into Trinidad, a town which hasn't changed for 400 years. Old men on donkeys trotted down the cobbled streets amongst bicycles, old American cars, handcarts etc. The area around the church is being renovated and is now a UNESCO heritage site. We were on our way to find somewhere to eat lunch when the Heavens opened. The streets emptied like magic as a torrential downpour swept down. After a few minutes the roads were so full of rushing water it was impossible to cross the road. It was over quickly though and the sky cleared so we grabbed a couple of hours lounging by the pool watching hummingbirds and swimming.

Our guide suggested we tried a 'local restaurant' this evening. As Cuba is a Communist country everything is Government owned. However, some local people open their homes to small numbers of tourists, and we were assured that the meal would be unforgettable - lobster and prawns as well as fish or pork chop! It certainly was unforgettable! The lobster had been boiled far too long and was impossible to coax out of its shell. After serious scooping and digging with a fork it pinged out hitting the ceiling only to be devoured by one of the many cats and dogs around our feet. The prawns were like bullets, but the fish was almost raw. What a wicked waste of such lovely food. We rounded off the evening with a visit to the Casa de la Musica where we spent a great couple of hours trying to salsa like the locals.

We next headed up into the mountains to a hacienda at Codina. Some of us travelled in an old Russian open backed truck while the others hiked. Due to my injured knee I was persuaded not to do the hike as our guide described it as "up, up and down, down". It turned out to be the right decision apparently. After a perilous journey 'up up and down, down' bumpy dirt tracks, full of deep potholes, sitting on a hard wooden bench, hanging on for dear life, I was more than happy to relax in an old rocking chair on the veranda of the hacienda looking down over the mountains, drinking coffee and reading until the rest of the group arrived. They eventually turned up, very hot and very tired. After lunch we were taken on a walk round the area and after dinner we all lay out on the veranda in our sleeping bags looking at the stars before falling into a not so blissful sleep.

The snores and grunts of a dozen or so men, and women, combined with cockerels who had no idea that crowing was supposed to occur at daybreak, not from 2am, ensured that only Terry had a peaceful sleep! (For those of you who don't know us, Terry is profoundly deaf!)

Next morning, after a hearty breakfast of the inevitable ham and cheese, a huge chunk of one of my teeth came out. Why is it that you're about as far away from a dentist as you can possibly be when these things happen? Luckily someone had brought an emergency dental kit with them. Two of the girls turned out to be nurses, not that that was at all relevant in these circumstances, but they took the task in hand and duly mixed the cement and tried to glue my tooth back together. It was rather weird sitting on a veranda high in the mountains with a circle of amateur photographers snapping me showing my mouthful of fillings to the world. Certainly embarrassing!

The walkers then set off to our next camp, another hacienda this time deep in a valley next to a beautiful river. This time we were given the option of a tent perched up on the hillside. We gladly accepted and lugged our bags up the hill. We were soon surrounded - by chickens, pigs, goats, a white horse and of course, another night of noisy cockerels. When the rest of the group arrived we had lunch and left to hike up to a waterfall and lagoon, a wonderful walk along the river and up through the forest. Along the way the guide pointed out the national bird of Cuba, the Cuban trogon, a gorgeous red, white and blue bird high up in the trees. We arrived at the waterfall some two hours later and thankfully jumped in and enjoyed half an hour of swimming under the waterfall and just taking in the magnificent scenery around us before returning to the hacienda along the other side of the river.

The next morning after a quarter of an omelette each, with bread and fruit we headed off to Camaguay and found our accommodation overlooking the railway station. After dinner we decided to check out the local Casa de la Musica which was not as good as Trinidad and consisted of tourists mainly.

The next day we explored the city by bicy-taxi before heading on, via Bayamo, to the Sierra Maestra mountains and the hideaway of Castro and Che Guevara. This was one of the highlights of the trip for me and I was really looking forward to seeing the village where they spent so many months in hiding. Castro's living quarters are just as he left them as were those of Che Guevara. There was a fully working hospital up there along with the living quarters of the revolutionaries. Food and provisions were transported up there by sympathisers on the backs of mules but no-one else had any idea there was a camp up there.

As we got close to the mountains we had to change to a smaller vehicle and endured a hair-raising journey through the mountains - sheer drops and the steepest hills I've ever encountered. The gears of the truck were screaming as we went down and again as we went up. I was glad it was dark!

We had a hurried meal of beef in tomato, rice and beans, papaya in syrup and coffee and were then told that, due to the recent rains, the climb the following day would be much more challenging than previously thought and I was told that I would be unable to partake. I was determined to do it and got up and ready with the others. A lady then took me to one side, sat me down, and convinced me that to do this could jeopardise the rest of our travels, we were miles from the nearest hospital and is it really worth risking my knee and the rest of the travelling we'd planned for the sake of one hike?

I decided she was probably right, so stood and tearfully waved Terry and everyone else off. I was dreadfully disappointed but went off on a less challenging walk around the area with another girl who'd damaged her back when falling out of the top bunk of an Indian train the year before. When the others returned they were full of it and said it was definitely worth the hard climb. That didn't improve my mood much but at least Terry got some video footage of it all to show me.

Our next destination was Santiago de Cuba where we visited the Bacardi Rum factory as well as the city centre. It proved to be the hottest day so far so we headed back to the hotel before the others. We spotted a guy standing next to a very smart taxi so approached him to take us 'home'. We agreed a price and he then led us off down the back streets to a real old banger which looked like a 'cut an shut'! We couldn't back out of the deal so arrived at our hotel somewhat dishevelled but alive!

On then to Santa Clara, another important city of the Revolution. Che Guevara fought the military who were arriving in the city by train and defeated them. There were 39 of his men against 408 soldiers. From there to the Che Mausoleum where his remains lie and the museum describing the events of that battle together with photos of Che Guevara over the years.

Our final stop was in the region of Vinales, the tobacco growing area for those famous cigars. The scenery changed dramatically here with limestone mogotes (hills) dotted around the area. There is only one other place like this in the world and that is in Southern China around Guilin which we'd visited 18 months before. We did several treks around the area, visiting tobacco drying sheds and learning the history of tobacco growing. I found this scenery stunning, green fields full of tobacco, bullock carts moving between them with a backdrop of the amazing limestone hills against the brilliant blue sky.

The life of a tobacco grower is very hard. The Government says they must grow 50,000 plants a year. Only three times in the last 17 years had they reached this quota, mainly because of the weather. The farmers have to grow maize in the meantime to feed their families which is not subsidised by the Government.

To round off our tour we took a ferry over to Cayo Valesa, an island off the coast. When we arrived at the harbour there must have been 100 people waiting for a ferry which carries 20 but we were able to board after an hour of waiting and spent the day on the beach swimming and relaxing before returning to Havana, dining in a salsa bar with the friends we'd met along the way and finishing with drinks in Hemingway's bar.

We left then for a final week of relaxation to our all-inclusive hotel in Varadero a holiday resort peninsular on the north coast, before returning home.

Quite a trip! After the excitement of the Central American countries which were so different from anywhere we'd visited before, with their volcanoes and exotic bird and animal life, Cuba gave us the fun of the salsa and the history of the Revolution, as well as total relaxation. Unforgettable!

HIGHWAYS NEWS.

Hello Enford Residents

The C32.

We have sent a second letter to Wiltshire County Council Highways requesting for traffic calming action along the C32. We are now lobbying for a site meeting with a Highways Safety Engineer with a view to get the C32 on the Traffic Calming Programme for 2009.

The A345.

Enford Parish has been chosen for a Pilot Community Speed Watch Scheme for Wiltshire. It entails Parish Councillors and Residents getting involved (trained) to operate Speed Camera Technology. Seven have already been trained and we have five others in reserve for training.

It will mean that two to four trained people will be involved in the operation at any one time and the survey site will be Enford Hill near the bus stop on the A345. Information of speed of vehicles will be identified and will be logged and then relayed to the police for action if necessary. This scheme is not about spying on motorists or local people, it is about endeavouring to get motorists to slow down to the 30mph Speed Limit through Enford. It is also hoped that by taking part in this Pilot Scheme that we will bring some "Due Care and Attention" by all motorists who are passing through Enford. If, in our efforts, we manage to bring some awareness that speed causes accidents and injuries and should we also get a long term reduction of speed though this area we will have achieved something.

The operation will take place during daylight hours on a clear day and will be in conjunction with the Wiltshire Police. We trust that you will all give this Traffic Calming venture your full support to make Enford a safer area for all users.

I would like to thank here all of the Parish Council and to also the volunteers who have made this scheme possible for Enford.

Safe Motoring to All.

Stan. W. Bagwell Enford Parish Council (Highways)

Food waste digester offer

The latest figures show people in Wiltshire are recycling more than ever – and the county council is hoping that performance can get even better. As part of that effort, the council is offering discounted food waste digesters to residents. They can deal with raw and cooked waste including items as fruit, vegetables, bones, pasta, fish and meat. There are two types of digester available and prices start at just £20. You can order one by ringing a special free hotline number 0800 019 2064 or via www.greencone.com

National Year of Reading

As part of the National Year of Reading, the county council has organised lots of events to encourage people to get the most out of reading in all forms.

Events for June include:

- Deborah Gaye from Avalanche books will lead an interactive workshop looking at how best to get a story into print (Warminster library on 26th June)
- Author Deborah Moggach will be giving a book talk on her latest book In the Dark (Devizes library on 18th June)
- Author Judy Jones will give a talk entitled Travels with my Dog where she shares her passion for walking and explains how the hunt for a lost dog inspired her latest book (Wootton Bassett library on 27th June)

Dear Jane & Friends

Your recent donation – thank you!

I am writing to thank you so much for your recent donation of £300

Many people have been forced to flee from the Rift Valley, Kenya by the recent conflict over disputed election results.

Rachel, pictured, and her children had left their home with only as many possessions as they could carry – and then walked nearly all the way to Nairobi.

I was delighted to be in Kenya recently, to see Feed The Children staff and helpers give homeless families like Rachel's a bag of food, blankets and other essentials.

Thanks to your help, Rachel and her family have hope; they are looking forward to returning home as soon as they feel safe.

It is thanks to the generosity of our supporters that we can respond quickly to emergency situations as they arise; and our supporters have once again responded magnificently to our appeal.

Yours sincerely

NEWS SHEET
July 2008

Any general comment about military training should normally be made through Parish Councils to the Liaison Officer nominated by the appropriate Garrison Headquarters. Any specific complaint should be made in writing or if urgent by telephone as shown below:

HEADQUARTERS SALISBURY PLAIN TRAINING AREA
Westdown Camp, Tilshead, Salisbury, Wiltshire SP3 4RS

Telephone: Stonehenge (01980) – 620819

TRAINING: July will be a busy month on the Plain with several simultaneous armoured exercises up to Squadron level and 1 R ANGLIAN from Pirbright converting onto the new BULLDOG APC during the first two weeks. Then from 23rd – 31st July 3 Commando Brigade will be exercising over all areas (and in Wales) preparing for their forthcoming tour in Afghanistan. This will be one of the biggest pre-deployment exercises we have seen with some 6000 troops taking part. It will involve considerable helicopter and fast jet activity which may cause some local noise nuisance for which we apologise in advance.

You have probably seen our cleaning van around the village as we operate a Carpet & Upholstery cleaning company- CleanLiving. Some of you have already used our service and have been amazed at the results we achieved. Stain removal is our speciality.
